OUTING DATE IS SET BY MINERS

Saturday, August 14 Chosen For Picnic of District No. 5 at Eldora

DR. JOSEPH HOLMES COMING

The picnic season is now well under way for the summer of 1915, although inclement weather and other things of a discouraging nature have been drawbacks in getting the season well inaugurated. Eldora park has had its dates thus far pretty well filled. and there have been numerous inquiries concerning the coming weeks, dating up to the Fourth of July and even later. Saturday, August 14 is the date the miners of the Fifth Bituminous district have selected for their outing at Eldora park, and with Frank Hayes, international vice president and Dr. Joseph Holmes. of the United States Bureau of Mines present, it will be one of the big events of the year in the Monongahela valley.

The school picnic season is practically over now, with the Monessen school outing arranged for Friday of this week. it being the last.

Next week one of the first private dances of the season will be given by the Alpha Phi Beta fraternity, of Charleroi. The dance it is expected will be one of the most popular of the summer. owing to the popularity of those giving it. Past experiences have proven the Alpha Phi Beta among the best socially that could be given.

On next Thursday the Young Ladies' Hebrew association of Monessen have first claim on the park privileges, having arranged to hold a dance then. The regular weekly events will likewise be featured.

WILL OPEN NEW LOCK SHORTLY FOR TRAFFIC

Plan is to Operate Outer Lock at No. 4 by Hand Until All Machinery is Installed and in Best of Shape, Which Will be Some Time in August

It is now stated that the new outer lock and construction at Lock No. 4 will be opened by the middle of June. However the lock officials report that the lock will not be completed in full until some time in August.

Government men in charge report that the new lock will be sufficiently completed to be operated by hand some time in July. All up-to-date machinery will be installed and will be ready for operation in August.

The greater portion of the concrete work has been completed. A fine power house is nearing completion. This will furnish power for the operation of the new lock gates. The power will be air compresed by water. The new lock will be 360 feet long and 56 feet wide when completed. All steel gates are being used in the new lock instead of the old timbay wooden ones used before reconstruction.

Business, especially in coal, has been picking up lately and the locking business is an important one. The new lock and new devices will prove quicker. easier and more convenient to all concerns using the river for transportation.

YOUNG GIRL KILLED BY BIG AUTOMOBILE

Annie Miller Meets Almost Instant Death on Daisytown Road Near California—Accident Not the Fault of Chauffeur

Caught and dragged beneath the wheels of a large Oakland touring car driven by John Frank, a merchant of Daisytown as she dashed across the road near her home in Granville about 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. Annie Miller, aged 13 years was almost instantly crushed to death. She is the daughter of Tony Miller who operates a hack between Daisytown and Coal Center.

The tragedy makes the third that has occurred on the road that passes through Daisytown and Granville within recent months while numerous persons have been injured.

No blame is placed upon Frank in connection with the killing of the Miller girl. She was playing tag with some companions and is said to have dashed suddenly in front of the machine and Frank was unable to bring it to a stop before having hit her with considerable force.

Thrown beneath the wheels of the large seven-passenger touring car, she was almost instantly killed. Ugly wounds were inflicted from the body being dragged and blood was splattered over the road for some distance.

The girl met her tragic death about 150 feet from her own home and the lifeless form was picked up and carried there. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

BROWNSVILLE BRIDGE SPOILED PROPERTY, IS OWNER'S CLAIM

First Damage Suit Filed Against Bridge Company at Up-River Point

SAYS GRADE WAS CHANGED

Assertion Made That Erection of Bridge Higher Than Before Brought About Damage to Extent Of $19,000—Details Announced.

The first action to be filed, growing out of the construction of the new bridge over the Monongahela river between West Brownsville and Brownsville, was filed Wednesday against the county. The plaintiff is Sara Axton and she asks $10,000. In the construction of this bridge it was necessary to erect it considerably higher than the old bridge, torn down a number of years ago. Consequently a change in grade was made in front of the properties along Bridge street in West Brownsville.

By reason of this change of grade she avers the surface water ran upon her property, into her cellar and continued to do so for some time, rendering the place damp, unhealthful and undesirable. Further, on account of the upgrade in front of her place, she claims the noise, dust, smoke and fumes from public travel is greatly increased. The outlet to her property, it is also set out has been cut off and her property otherwise irreparably damaged.

MAINTAINED THAT ASSAULT WAS ONLY TONGUE LASHING

Hence Charleroi Man is Discharged From Further Custody in Workhouse by County Courts.

Philip Davis of Charleroi, who on an alleged charge of assault and battery. preferred before Justice E. E. Rice, of Charleroi was sent by that justice of the peace to the workhouse for six months. has been discharged by the court from further custody. The young man was brought from the workhouse on a writ of habeas corpus. The justice had acted under the Erie act. but the court found that under the facts of the case there was no "assault and battery" committed by Davis. The prosecutor named in the transcript was Lulu Furlong and she made affidavit that she had not made the information against Davis. The court found that if there had been any assault it was simply an assault with the tongue, by cursing and swearing. that no blows had been struck. The court further found that the justice had erred in imposing the sentence that he did impose and had acted beyond his rights.

THE TOOTH BRUSH

We have been taught that the tooth brush should be as indispensable from youth to old age as a man's shadow. Indeed the latter might be dispensed with without jeopardizing one's position in polite society.

The primary purpose of the tooth brush is excellent, but it is well remembered that as it is intended to clean the instrument itself should be beyond suspicion in this regard. The majority of disease germs find their way into the human system through the mucous membrane of the nose and mouth, says the state health commissioner.

If the teeth are not frequently and properly cleansed these germs or bacteria will multiply in cavities or where particles of food have become lodged between the teeth. These minute germ breeding centers should be removed by vigorous brushing but when the desired result is accomplished care should be taken that they do not in turn lodge in the intricacies of the tooth brush. If they remain there they are in later retransferred to the mouth.

To guard against this the brush should be thoroughly cleansed before and after using in scalding water if this is obtainable. If not, in some non-poiconous antiseptic wash. At least wash the brush with soap and water and rinse thoroughly.

Care should be taken not to keep a tooth brush where it is exposed to dust and dirt. If there are several members of the family the same receptacle should not be used for the brushes as the germs of disease may readily be transmitted from one brush to another in this manner.

It is well to make use of white thread or dental floss to remove particles from between the teeth which are difficult to remove with the brush. It is from fragments of food that lodge between the teeth that decay often starts.

When you visit the dentist you expect and demand exceptional cleanliness in the care of his instruments. See that your own dental utensils are immaculate.

LIFE-SAVING

Western Pennsylvania is now being canvassed by what might be termed a life-saving crew, the crew consisting of all those who are working for the relief of the non-combatant sufferers in Belgium. To relieve their wants is a task that the American people are essaying, because no other country can so well do the humanitarian work. Yet it is a difficult task, as realized by the Washington Observer, which says:

To feed the 7,000,000 or more people in Belgium—and this means just to provide them with enough food to sustain life—the reports of the commision for relief in Belgium must send to them 78,000 tons of food a month, of which about 60,000 must be in wheat or its equivalent in flour. Of the people in the occupied area, about 1,500,000 are absolutely dependent upon charity, while the remaining 5,500,000 still pay for what they get, and the commission makes a profit on the sales, which is applied with other funds to the relief of the helpless. To carry on this immense enterprise in charity the commission has about $10,000,000 of working capital, which was advanced by Belgian banks, and though this seems large its adequacy may be judged by the fact that the commission must have about $15,000,000 worth of food in transit all the while.

Other facts as to the magnitude and difficulty of the work in Belgium might be given, but these suffice to bear out the statement of the commission that the situation is unparalleled in history. The sources from which the commission can draw money for a continuance of the work are two. One is the charges, profits and contributions drawn from the Belgians themselves and the other is the world's charity. If the existing situation continues, the ability of the Belgians to pay for a part of their subsistence must grow less and less, and the list of those wholly dependent on charity must before long be greatly increased.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

According to Gertrude Gordon, the talented writer of the Pittsburg Press, a certain young man of her acquaintance had considerable trouble slicing a tiny roll of ice-cold butter on a certain occasion when he took a precise and prim young woman to a fine restaurant one night for dinner.

The young man argued gamely with the refractory butter, to no avail. Naturally he became somewhat embarrassed. Still he persisted in taming the butter to complete submission, while the fair maiden by his side demurely sat, eyes downcast, apparently not witnessing his discomfiture.

She did look up, and just then he caught her eye. "Put your foot on this till I cut it," he exclaimed exasperatingly in attempting a pun. She reddened.

Since that time the demure young lady and the reckless young man have not been intimate.

Pat was an Irishman who lately had come to American shores, according to D. L. Gillespie, a Pittsburg contractor who was a speaker at the men's Belgium relief dinner in East Pittsburg Friday. He wandered into a barroom, and ordered a drink.

A fight was started at one end of the room and the scrappers were soon separated. The next thing, the erstwhile peacemakers were engaged in a battle royal at the other end.

Pat gazed silently a moment at the melee, then drew the bartender to one side.

"Soy", he queried, "is thot a private affair, or can anybody get in?"

Luke McLuke Says:

The old fashioned woman who used to bake all her own bread and biscuits now has a married daughter who thinks that dough is what her husband earns and she spends.

A man will tip the same waiter a quarter every day in the week and think nothing of it. But if he gives his wife a quarter on Monday and she asks for another quarter on Friday, he wants to know what she did with the quarter he gave her last Monday.

A fly has some human traits. He isn't satisfied to mind his own business and keep out of trouble. He insists on buzzing around your face and annoying you until you swat him.

A man seldom thinks seriously about marriage until after he is married and is compelled to.

You will often discover that your distant relations are too close.

A woman always feels sorry for her husband when she realizes how miserable he would be if he had married some other woman.

During the first three weeks of married life a man tells his wife everything he knows. But it is different later on.

When you have rheumatism the other fellow can tell you ten sure cures for it. But when the other fellow gets it the only remedy he can think of is to sit down and holler.

CHECKS FOR LARGE AMOUNTS

One Drawn for Forty-Nine Million Dollars Set a High Record Recently.

Last Wednesday Kuhn, Loeb & Co. turned a check for $49,000,000 over to the Pennsylvania railroad in payment for the bonds recently purchased. That check was $9,000,000 larger, as far as Wall street could recall this week, than any which ever passed through the financial district.

On May 7, 1904, Secretary Shaw left Washington for New York with a check in his pocket for $40,000,000 drawn to J. P. Morgan & Co., who represented the French syndicate in the Panama canal transaction. That same year Speyer & Co. turned a check for $40,000,000 over to Mexico, in connection with the purchase of government bonds.

Any number of checks for smaller amounts were recalled. One for $28,000,000 was drawn in connection with the purchase by Lake Shore of Reading stock. A year ago one for $22,000,000 was drawn on the Bank of Commerce for $22,000,000 to pay for city bonds. Only a few weeks ago a check for $18,000,000, drawn by the Consolidated Gas, passed through the National City bank.

"I can recall 20 years ago," an official of one of the large Wall street institutions said, "when a crowd would gather around our bank to get a look at a check for $100,000. Nowadays, no attention is paid to a check for $5,000,000 or $10,000,000, except to make the necessary routine arrangements to prevent a disturbance of balances."

When that remark was repeated to a well-known international banker, he replied with a laugh: "Sometimes they don't even do that."—New York Evening Post.

HAITIANS NOT ALL SAVAGES

Island Has a Literature of Its Own and Many Refined and Educated People.

Very few are familiar with conditions in Haiti. The fact that it has a literature, groups of refined and educated people in all the important towns, distinguished doctors and lawyers who would rank high in any country, is not at all generally known.

The official language of the country is French, and all educated persons, of course, speak this language. The books of Haitian authors are written in this language. The native literature is now becoming considerable, embraces almost all departments and some of it is of a high order. The early writers wrote history and ephemeral poetry. The principal historians are Madiou and Ardouin, who both wrote well-known histories of Haiti. Mr. J. N. Leger, ex-minister to the United States, has also written an interesting history of Haiti.

Within the last few years Mr. Magloire has published a history of Haitian revolutions. Among the writers of romance, Demesver Delorme, who has been called the father of Haitian literature, takes first place. He wrote "Francisca," "Les Theoriciens au Pouvoir" and "La Hollande." He was decorated by the emperor of Germany, the pope and the sultan of Turkey. Frederic Marcelin, Ferdinand Hibbert, Antoine Innocent and others have written very interesting stories portraying Haitian life, manners and customs.

British Control of Egypt.

Few developments of the war can be fuller of irony than the transformation of Egypt into a British protectorate as a byproduct of an Anglo-French struggle against Germany. Bismarck, indeed, denied the statement made by Lord Granville in the house of lords in 1885 (and by M. de Blowitz in his memoirs) that at Berlin in 1878 he had advised Lord Beaconsfield to "take Egypt." He elaborately explained that he had only recommended us to become "leaseholders" of the sultan. But it is plain enough that Bismarck welcomed our control of Egypt as an annoyance to France and a diversion of French thought from Europe. That was an older German policy than is generally realized. Leibnitz suggested the occupation of Egypt to Louis XIV, with a view to turning French policy away from the Rhine.—London Chronicle.

Chinese Women.

It was only ten years ago that a famous Chinese viceroy said: "Don't give women books in which to store their embroidery threads." Now educational enterprises include women as generally as men. In 1907, when 500 students came up to Nanking to take examinations in connection with the western scholarships, three of the thirteen students chosen were women. Twelve Chinese women are now studying in Great Britain; two woman physicians trained in the United States are in charge of a hospital in Kinkiang; another Chinese woman is at the head of a hospital in Foochow, and still another is the editor of a paper in Peking.

Religion in Germany.

So far as the German empire as a whole is concerned, there is no state religion, each state being left free to maintain its own establishment. Thus, while the emperor, as king of Prussia, is head of the Prussian Evangelical church, as German emperor he enjoys no such ecclesiastical headship.

According to the religious census of 1910, the population of Germany was divided as follows: Protestants, 61.6 per cent; Roman Catholics, 36.7; others unclassified, 1.7.

almost a half century devoted to the highest aims of store-keeping quality—lowest prices—wide assortments

THE ANNIVERSARY SALE will be for a week with important events scheduled for each day—a hand of welcome awaits the new friends as well as those who have been coming to this store for years--Opening Days of course, will be the best—even if you have to start early and come a long distance, and perhaps stay over night in Pittsburgh, it will pay you to come. This is an unconditional promise—we have been preparing to back up for months in a way that will surprise the most exacting value-giving seeker.

Over a half million dollars' worth of merchandise for this sale

Which, in a great many instances, was bought at prices that equal a veritable Birthday gift from the people we do business with—bought at prices that serve as an expression of appreciation of our business—every dollar's worth of merchandise we aequired in this way we in turn will place on sale during Anniversary Week at prices that represent little or no profit as we want our patrons to know, feel and appreciate how much we value and esteem their loyalty to this store—their patronage.

It takes months to prepare for a sale of this sort

We have been working on this sale for over three months—our representatives have visited every available market and manufacturers and importers have joined hands with us—entered into the spirit of this Anniversary Sale, and through their desire to assist us to make an unprecedented success of this occasion, have contributed some noteworthy lots of merchandise at a price that would strongly indicate their appreciation of the long years we have been buying goods from them, and so we can say to our lifelong friends, and many new friends, that never in the history of this store—or any other store in this broad land—have such remarkable values been offered as will be presented during this, our 46th Anniversary Sale.

The good old fashioned way of doing business is still in vogue here.

The modern "sharp and slick" way of doing business has never been a part of our business policy. We have stuck to the homely, good old fashioned way of buying goods at the lowest price and selling at the lowest price—of doing things as "straight as a string."

When this store invites you to a "Sale"—it's a "Sale" in the strictest sense of the word—and we back each event up in such a manner that there is not any doubt of our sale policy.

What this sale means to us: What it means to you:

In preparing for this—our 46th Anniversary Sale—we had just one thought in mind—we were determined to arrange a sale that would fittingly mark the occasion, and in addition would afford unprecedented values for all who come—values that would still further entrench this store in the estimation of our patrons—the buying public in general—values that would more than satisfy the thousands of patrons who have looked to this store for almost a half century to supply their needs.

Have we succeeded in doing all this?

We have—most assuredly we have—and the merchandise—the excellent quality—the large assortment and the low prices tell us, and will tell you—we have.

Different Departments will be featured each day—it will pay you to watch the papers.

COMING OF BIG WILD WEST SHOW JUNE 16 OF UNUSUAL INTEREST

The 101 Ranch Wild West show is scheduled to exhibit in Charleroi Wednesday, June 16. This fact is in itself interesting, for those who are familiar with Miller Bros. & Arlington's big frontier exhibition credit it with being the most representative display of the kind now before the public.

The visit of thes how to Charleroi however, will have a unique interest, because one of its features will be the cowboy world's champion, Jess Willard, who has entered into a contract with the management to appear at every performance during the current season. Moreover, it is announced, he will take an active interest in the exhibition for as a rider and roper he made a reputation long before he entered the fistic world.

Edward Arlington, advance manager of the big show made the definite announcement that Willard would be seen here with the show

"Our contract with Willard," said Mr. Arlington, "is a comprehensive one, and he will remain with the show during the summer and early fall—in fact until he is ready to go into training for his next big fight. This means of course, that he will positively be with the show in this city. There is undoubtedly a great deal of curiosity to see the champion, and he has been given an ovation all along the route. The interest in the champion is accentuated by the fact that notwithstanding his wonderful fighting qualities, he is a man of family and of irreproachable life. Willard has his own private car, fitted up with every convenience and his wife as well as a company of trainers and sparrers travel with him. The champion will appear in the arena as a cowboy. He will also illustrate, in ring costume, just how he gove Jack Johnson the knock-out blow.

Jess Willard would be a big feature for any show and naturally involves a very heavy guarantee on the part of the management. Notwithstanding this heavy express for a feature with a "punch," there will be no curtailment of the Wild West part of the show. The Indian congress, led by the noted chief, Iron Tail, whose profile is on the new nickel; the conclave of cowboys, cowgirls, Mexicans, Coccacks and other strenuous people and all the other notables are still in evidence—only more so—and a performance of thrills and excitement is promised.

A picturesque street parade will inaugurate Wild West and Willard Day at 10:30 in the morning.

REPORTS ENCOURAGE RELEIF COMMITTEES

General Meeting of Belgian Relief Organization in Pittsburg Wednesday Night—News of Activities at Many Points.

The Pittsburg and Western Pennsylvania Belgian Relief Committee was much encouraged in its sack of flour day campaign today by reports received from neighboring communities throughout the western half of the state. Chairman William Flinn of the General committee, declared that the cordial co-operation of outside towns would insure 200,000 sacks of flour for the war sufferers in Belgium. At a meeting in Pittsburg Wednesday night,the local committee sounded the keynote for a Western Pennsylvania ship to be chartered to carry Western Pennsylvania donations exclusively.

In the out-of-town communities, according to reports received in Pittsburg, even better progress is being made in similar communities than in the big city.

The out-of-town committees in many places are holding mass meetings, to enroll persons who have volunteered for the canvas to be made on Monday, June 7, which will be proclaimed as "bread day" through Wester Pennsylvania.
